Healthy Workforce Institute Announces Diane Salter as Speaker at the 2022 American Organization for Nursing Leadership Conference
Consultant discusses challenges of leadership development at her community-based hospital.

Oldsmar, FL. May 1, 2022–Today, the Healthy Workforce Institute®, (HWI) healthyworkforceinstitute.com, announced that one of its consultants, Diane Salter MSN, RN, CPAN, NE-BC, spoke at the 2022 American Organization for Nursing Leadership conference in San Antonio, TX.

The American Organization of Nursing Leadership (AONL) supports more than 11,000 nurse leaders and is considered the voice of nursing leadership. AONL advances the professional development of nurse leaders through innovative learning experiences, including its annual conference. The AONL annual conference is one of the premier nurse leader conferences in the country.

Using Healthy Workforce Institute material, Salter and her team developed a workshop to create and sustain a professional workforce culture at her hospital. Titled “Patient Services Leadership Workshop”, it provided leaders with educational materials and tools to better navigate their daily challenges. Salter will discuss the development of the workshop and its success with participants of the conference. “Frontline leadership in healthcare is extremely demanding and difficult.” States Salter. “Many organizations prepare new leaders upon hire with organization offerings such as management basics and organization specific practices and policies, however, ongoing leader development for the organizational backbone position is often scarce.”
